INTRODUCTION

This handbook is designed to be a tool for all student organizations and advisors of at the main campus of New Mexico State University (NMSU). It includes helpful information for student organizations and advisors about expectations, University policies and procedures, and operations to ensure a successful co-curricular experience.

The Office of Student Involvement and Leadership Programs (SILP) annually recognizes student organizations that complement the mission of the university and enhance the quality of education outside the classroom. Recognition does not imply endorsement of the organizations' activities and actions by the university. Recognition is a privilege and may be withdrawn for violation of university policies and procedures, student conduct code, and state, local, and/or federal laws.

OVERVIEW

The recognition process for student organizations is under the guidance of the office of Student Involvement and Leadership Programs. SILP is an office within the Division of Student Success and Enrollment Management and reports to the Associate Vice President of Student Development and Dean of Students.

Student Involvement and Leadership Programs recognizes the importance of co-curricular activities as an integral part of the college-learning experience. Active participation in student organizations provides opportunity for the development of leadership skills, social interaction, and a sense of participation in the campus community. Student Involvement and Leadership Programs assists recognized student organizations in the planning and implementation of a wide range of social, cultural and educational programs designed to engage students, while preparing them to become contributing members in the campus community and global society.

Many studies have shown that students who become involved in co-curricular activities in college benefit personally, socially, and academically. Student Involvement and Leadership Programs and NMSU encourage students to become involved in student life on campus and to participate in the many co-curricular activities offered. Being involved in the total university community furthers student learning and personal development, and contributes to the overall satisfaction with the NMSU academic/educational experience.

Student Involvement and Leadership Programs professional staff personnel have the unique opportunity to work in an advisory, educational, consulting, and resource role with the student participating as members of the recognized student organizations.

OBJECTIVES FOR STUDENT ORGANIZATION

As stated in the LEADS 2025 Vision:

GOAL 1: Enhance Student Success & Social Mobility

Student success across the NMSU system is driven by a commitment to learning in support of degree and career attainment enriched by our research and outreach enterprise. Our students are served by our culture of inclusivity and educational delivery that meets student needs and includes online and hands-on learning. Recognizing the diverse backgrounds of students across the system, NMSU provides a supportive environment for students to become a part of, and contribute to, the campus community, the state, the country, and the world.

OBJECTIVE 1.3: Develop a culture of 'Aggie Life' that reflects service-learning, experiential learning, engagement in campus community, and engagement in research experiences

Student Involvement and Leadership Programs has developed organizational objectives that contribute to the development of student organizations. Student Involvement and Leadership Programs expects certain developmental outcomes will be realized by fulfilling these objectives.

1. Development of activities that promote the students' intellectual and educational capabilities, personalities, and physical skills by assisting students in becoming involved with student organizations which fit their purpose, personal development, hobbies, issues and interests.
2. Development of social skills through social interaction, leadership skills, and good citizenship by encouraging successful involvement in leadership and skill development opportunities, specialized programs for student organizations and resource information, and offering professional advising, training and an array of organizational, leadership and volunteer support services.
3. Development of policies and procedures that hold student organizations responsible for maintaining "good standing" with the university and community, while holding individuals accountable for their own actions and behaviors by seeking to engage students, faculty, and staff in a supportive community that encourages students to work together within a diverse student population and care about the welfare of others.

Student Involvement and Leadership Programs encourages students to become involved in existing student organizations or to establish new and diverse organizations, and is available to assist you in answering any questions regarding student organizations.

USAGE OF THE UNIVERSITY NAME AND INSTITUTIONAL MARKS

Recognized student organizations at NMSU may use select terms or logos that are trademarked by New Mexico State University.

Terms: Recognized student organizations may use the university name (New Mexico State University or NMSU) or a related department name within the organization's official title. When using a department or unit name, the student organization must also differentiate itself from the related department.

Logos: Recognized organizations also can use three trademarks: the institutional logo, Aggies wordmark and Pistol Pete face above NM State type.

Official NMSU trademarks never should be altered. This includes drop shadows, outlines, stretching, unauthorized colors and patterns, the addition of text and graphics, typeface, modification of the elements within the mark, enclose within another shape or combine with another mark or design. The TM symbol is required on NMSU trademarks used on items created by third-party vendors.

Use of protected NMSU terms and marks must be reviewed and approved by a representative of the NMSU Marketing and Communications office. Contact mktgserv@nmsu.edu.

NMSU Marketing and Communications highly recommends using a licensed vendor. These vendors have established a reputation of accurately reproducing NMSU's marks and colors, and they are held to a code of ethics, which covers manufacturing, environmental, and worker's rights standards. Lastly, the NMSU Marketing and Communications review and approval processes are built into the process of ordering items from licensed vendors.

At its discretion, NMSU's Marketing and Communications office may revoke a student organization's permission to use NMSU trademarks. Permission may be revoked following repeated and/or flagrant abuse of the above guidelines or if the trademark is used in a way that violates NMSU ARP 3.25 – Prohibition of All Forms of Unlawful Discrimination.

DEFINITION OF A RECOGNIZED STUDENT ORGANIZATION

A “recognized” student organization at NMSU is defined as any student organizational group that meets the following criteria:

- Primary officers and membership consists of students enrolled at New Mexico State University
- Established in order to contribute to the students’ personal interests and development
- Meets all initial recognition requirements as outlined by Student Involvement and Leadership Programs
- Annually completes all trainings and recognition requirements as established by the Office of Student Involvement and Leadership Programs
- Understands and adheres to university policies and procedures

THINGS TO CONSIDER PRIOR TO THE RECOGNITION PROCESS

There are some basic questions that should be answered in order to form a new student organization at NMSU. Taking the time to answer these questions can help effectively organize and provide a framework for the new student organization.

PURPOSE:

- How will your organization be defined?
- What are your proposed goals?
- What are you hoping to accomplish?
- Are there similar organizations already established on campus?
- What role do you want to play?
- How will you pick an advisor?
- Is there a department with whom you can or will be affiliated?

MEMBERSHIP:

- Are there other people you already know who would want to join?
- How are you going to identify and recruit others?
- How will you convince them to join?
- What will this organization have to offer?
- What kind of commitment will members have to make?
- What makes this organization unique?

BASIC STEPS TO GETTING STARTED

The purpose of the recognition process is to provide Student Involvement and Leadership Programs, NMSU, and potential members with vital information about student organizations on campus for the current academic year.

All student organizations are required to be recognized annually between September 1st – 30th of the current academic year. A new organization may become recognized at any time during the academic year, but the approved recognition will expire on August 31st prior to the annual recognition period.

Failure to complete the recognition process by the designated deadline may cause an organization's recognized status to be withdrawn from active status. The Student Involvement and Leadership Programs Office reserves the right to deny recognition to any student organization who does not complete the recognition requirements in the allotted timeframe and/or maintain good standing with NMSU (as defined below).

All NMSU recognized student organizations must be open for membership to any student registered student on the main campus. However, as long as no student is excluded from participation, the following student organizations are exempt whose primary purpose is as follows:

- A. Social fraternities and sororities may select members based on gender. (See Regulations under Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972.)
- B. Religious-based student organizations may use beliefs as criteria for selection of membership to the extent outlined in the by-laws which state that it is affiliated with a specific religion or doctrine, or church and whose primary purpose is to promote and espouse certain beliefs that are religious in nature. Nevertheless, a religious-based student organization cannot discriminate on the basis of, nor inquire about the religious background or beliefs of students for admission into its meetings.
- C. Athletic/Sports Clubs may select members for participation in an athletic/sport competition which is based upon gender in a specific athletic skill, experience, or activity involved in athletic competition. (See Regulations under Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972)
- D. Academic Organizations may limit and/or select members for participation based on academic criteria that may include academic major/minor, GPA, year in school, talent/skills etc., as outlined by the academic department on the local, regional, state, or national levels.

Getting started correctly will make your organization run more smoothly. The following guidelines give you step-by-step procedures for recognizing a new student organization. Follow them carefully, and be sure to ask questions. Student Involvement and Leadership Programs staff can provide you with the assistance you need.

**STEP ONE: Selecting Officers, Members, and a Faculty/Staff Advisor*

ROLE OF THE ADVISOR

Advisors are essential to the success of a student organization. It is their responsibility to guide the group in accordance with the purposes and ideals of NMSU and the organization. The relationship of the advisor to the group will vary depending on each organization and its members. Some advisors play very active roles: regularly attending meetings, working with officers, and assisting in program planning. Others maintain a more distant relationship to the organizations, attending only 1-2 meetings per semester to get to know the members and help them know you and not engaging as actively with officer or member development and/or event planning. Therefore, the responsibilities and duties of the advisor will vary according to the group's needs.

You may assume the following roles as an advisor:

MENTOR - Often students will come to see their advisor as a mentor and the success of this relationship can have a positive impact on both the student and advisor alike for years to come. Advisors provide an outlet for students to talk about classes, their role in the organization, and everyday issues that students face. Provide the students with advice and share your life experiences to assist them with their academic career and beyond.

MEDIATOR - Occasionally issues may arise between members of an organization, between different organizations, or between organizations and university administrators. As an advisor you may need to step in and help mediate the conflict. Often you can pull the two opposing parties into the same room and solve the issue by a simple conversation.

EDUCATOR - One of the most essential components to learning in "outside the classroom activities" is reflecting on what you are learning and how you are doing. Advisors help student leaders use their best judgment in selecting and planning programs. Encourage students to stop and evaluate themselves. Assist them in recognizing learning opportunities and how those opportunities can make them better leaders and members in society.

MOTIVATOR - There will be times when an organization gets stuck on something or gets into a rut. Organizations may need assistance in overcoming these obstacles. Advisors are here to support and guide the organization, empowering students to make fair, intelligent, and reasonable decisions based on institutional guiding boundaries. You may need to be their cheerleader to keep them excited and motivated when facing a difficult challenge and to promote and support academic success within the organization.

RESOURCE - As a faculty/staff member you can be a valuable resource about University policies, procedures, and rules. You are not expected to know everything, but as an employee of the University you have many more connections, and know who to call, than the students to find sought after answers.

LIAISON - An advisor can serve a key role in bridging the gap between an organization and University administrators or even between organizations. Advisors work collaboratively with students by sharing responsibility for the organization and its events. Take advantage of these opportunities to advocate on behalf of the organization.
